Returns of County Commissioners Show 44,196
May Cast Ballots

FIRST WARD IN LEAD

Largest District in Borough
Just Misses the Thousand Mark

If all the voters registered in Bristol cast their ballots at the November election there will be 3,877 votes cast. There is a total of 1,726 voters registered in Bristol township including Harriman. These figures are taken from the returns of the Commissioners of Bucks County, following the final 60 day registration of voters in the various districts of the county.

The total registration in Bucks County is 44,196.

The list is the largest ever made up by the assessors, due to the addition of over 20,000 women voters, made eligible to vote by the constitutional amendment and regularly assessed for the first time this year.

Sellersville has the largest number of voters of any voting district in the county, 1,115. The only other voting district running over a thousand voters is the Third ward of Doylestown borough, which has 1,055.

The three next highest districts are the Third Ward of Quakertown, 989; the Fourth Ward of Bristol, 910, and the First ward of Perkasie, 901. There are 95 districts in the county, and there are an average of 465 voters in a district.

Railroad Strike To Effect Bristol Men

Several Bristol men who have obtained employment in the Morrisville shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company this past week, will be thrown out of employment if the six unions, comprising about 2,400 employees of the Morrisville and Trenton shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad, strike November 1.

A meeting was held at the Ribsam Building, Trenton, last evening for consideration of what action the railroad would take to combat the ultimatum of the Pennsylvania officials who have refused to recognize the union men. H. S. Carey, of Washington, a member of the railroad employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, gave an address reviewing the grievances of the men, and, after a general discussion, it was decided that the most effective action in bringing the results desired would be to strike. Frank J. Schnorbus, business agent of the Trenton Federation of Railroad Crafts, states that the vote to strike was almost 99 per cent. affirmative.

Results of similar balloting among railroad shop unions in all parts of the country are reported to show an overwhelming strike sentiment. The grievance of the men dates from the action of the Pennsylvania in informing the Labor Board of its refusal to recognize union labor among the employees of the line. The action of the rail officials was censured by the board, but the road has insisted upon the right to deal with the men as it sees fit.

Lloyd George To Attend Conference

England's Premier Definitely Decides to Come to Washington

HE ARRANGES PASSAGE

LONDON, Oct. 14—Premier Lloyd George has notified his colleagues that he has definitely decided to attend the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments, it was learned by the International News Service today. The Premier has consulted with the steamship Co., to speed up the sailing of the Aquitania so that the British delegation can be assured of arriving in Washington in time to attend the opening of the parley.

The Earl of Cavan, Lieutenant General of the Tower of London, who served on both the French and Italian fronts during the world war will represent the British war office at the Washington conference, it was learned today.

The Earl of Cavan commanded the Fourteenth British army corps on the western front and commanded the British troops that were sent to the Plave front in Northeastern Italy.

It is understood that the Premier's personal party will consist of Lord Riddell, Sir Edward Greig and J. E. Davies. Mr. Davies is the premier's private secretary and Lord Riddell has been in charge of the Premier's representatives of the press.

U. S. Disarmament Delegates Hold First Conference

The first meeting of the American delegation to the coming Armament Limitation Conference was held in Washington. The session lasted four hours. The photo shows the American delegation leaving the conference hall. Left to right: Elihu Root, Senator Oscar Underwood, of Alabama; Secretary of State Hughes, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Basil Miles, secretary to the delegation.

County Societies Meet at Newtown

Humane Federation Holds Interesting Session at George School

MEMBERS ARE NEEDED

The Bucks County Federated Humane Societies held a very interesting meeting at George School, Newtown, about eighty persons were present, whereas delegations of children and adults were expected from all parts of the county.

Four Newtown Y. P. B.'s kindly acted as ushers, following a greeting extended by Prof. George H. Nutt on behalf of George School the meeting was turned over to Mrs. E. W. Tryon, Vice President, pending the arrival of President, Mrs. J. H. Gledhill who spoke at length and decidedly to the point on trapping and the suffering caused by same, general education for children along humane work, and the purpose and cause of the Jack London Club which is nationally known by its members being opposed to trained animal acts of all kinds.

It was with regret that the meeting learned that Mrs. Geo. Cliff, president of County Federation of Women's Clubs, was detained at the last moment. Mrs. John H. Gledhill was then introduced and presided the balance of the session. A most pleasing vocal solo by Mrs. J. H. Tomson added enjoyment to the interesting program, following this—Mr. Richard C. Craven, Field Sec. of Red Star & Humane Assn., gave a most valuable talk with lantern slides along the line of Humane Education, showing various methods employed in large nearby cities for the care and treatment and disposal of all neglected or unfortunate animals both large and small that were brought to their attention.

Modern hospitals, ambulances, operating rooms, "roof gardens" all have been brought into play to make the care of animals equal to that of human beings, and a great stress was laid upon impressing the children of today—citizens of tomorrow—with the need and value of this kind of work.

A brief summing up of the need of more members for the Jack London Club by Miss M. Miller, a vocal solo by Mr. Malcolm Taylor Tomson which was highly appreciated by all present, concluded the program. A fine chorus of the Newtown Public School scholars rendered a pleasing selection—"The Monarch of the Forest"—entire audience joined in singing "America" and the meeting adjourned after giving a rising vote of thanks to the George School for the courtesy extended to the Federated Humane Societies of Bucks County.

Inventor And Wife Pass Bristol Enroute South

Captain William T. Donnelly, a well known consulting engineer, of New York, originator and promoter of electric propulsion for canal craft passed down the river today enroute to Philadelphia.

Mr. Donnelly was the originator of the scheme of using electric power for propelling canal boats. This power is generated on one boat and transferred to others by means of cables. He spent last night in Trenton with his two boats, the Dawn and the New Era. The crafts were moored in Weller's basin.

Accompanied by his family, Captain Donnelly is on his way to Florida, where he will have his headquarters for the winter. During the winter months he cruises inland water ways of the south in the interest of canal navigation, doing valuable research work along this line.

Ten Men Killed
BUCHAREST, Oct. 14—Ten men were killed and many were wounded when 150 trucks of ammunition exploded at Fort Rudnei, a Roumanian arsenal and fortification today.

Real Estate Here Not Very Active

Bristol Transfers of Property
Very Few During the Past Week

FIVE WILLS PROBATED

Bristol real estate during the past week has not been very active and the transfers of property located here have been but few in the Recorder's of Deeds office, Doylestown.

Several interesting real estate transfers were listed on the Recorder's of Deed docket during the last few days. Business was brisk in other law offices. In the Register of Wills office five wills were probated, two inventories filed and letters of administration issued in one estate.

Marriage license applications are also on the increase this month. The matrimonial market has been falling off the last two years, but there is hopes now of a great comeback.

One transfer recorded in Buckingham was that of 235 acres from Helen M. Bye, et al., to Matthew H. Reaser for $25,000. In Morrisville, another transfer of interest was that of a lot, from Clifford B. Elhin to Joseph R. Staub for $19,000.

Inventory in an estate valued at $165,270.80 was filed in the Register of Wills office.

Among the wills probated were the following:

Estate of William R. Cornwell, late of Northampton township. Letters testamentary granted to Phebe S. Cornwell, the executrix named.

Estate of Lizzie L. Meyers, late of Dublin. Letters testamentary granted to Christian L. Meyers and Daniel M. Leatherman, the executors named.

Estate of Abraham Z. Stover, late of Haycock township. Letters testamentary granted to Elmer E. Stover, the executor named.

Estate of Philip C. Croll, late of Quakertown. Letters testamentary granted to Clayton B. Croll and John C. Croll, the executors named.

Estate of Levi Swartley, late of New Britain township. Letters testamentary granted to John Swartley, the executor named.

Following deeds have been recorded for transfer of real estate:

John W. Ridgely to John J. Connor, et ux., lot $1400.

Antrea Chilene to Mary Sottile, lot $1800.

Ideal Land Co., to Michel Kloske et al., lot $39.

Ideal Land Co., to Frank A. Keck et al., $489.

Letters of administration were issued in the estate of Walter C. Yerkes late of Southampton township. Letters granted unto Harold C. Yerkes, W. LeRoy Yerkes and Agnes Y. Cliffe.

Inventories were filed in the estate of Elizabeth Comfort, late of Falls township, $165,270.80.

In the estate of John G. T. Luff, late of Northampton township, $719.

Plan Entertainment For Community Nurse

NEW HOPE, Oct. 14—Harold Hurlbert, who is coming to this borough on Saturday evening of next week, in the interests of the entertainment for the support of the community nurse, is the tenor who is, in this country, the representative of Jean de Retske, of opera fame.

Mr. Hurlbert studied several years under the great master, and is now making a record in New York which is said to bring pleasure and satisfaction to his famous preceptor.

The local entertainment will be held in Worthington's hall, and it is expected that there will be a large turnout of music-loving people who appreciate a real artist.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—Col. William Joseph Simmons, Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, was ill today and unable to appear before the House rules committee to undergo cross examination concerning his organization.

Bridge Commission To Open Office

Interstate Organization to Conduct Business From Headquarters

SECRETARY IN CHARGE

All the business of the New Jersey Free Bridge Commission, and that of the Interstate Bridge Commissions are jointly formed by the States of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, will hereafter be conducted from the old office of the New Hope Delaware Bridge Company, located at the Lambertville end of the bridge, spanning the Delaware at that point.

This is the only building owned by any of the bridge companies on the river that meets the needs of the commissions, it having been especially erected for the old toll bridge company some years ago, and is a modern, pleasant and light one-story frame building, of attractive appearance.

Filing cabinets and other office fixtures are being added at the present time, for the use of the recently appointed secretary, Gordon Cooper and the president, Walter F. Hayhurst, both of whom reside in Lambertville.

For some time past the work of the commission has been scattered, but from this time on it will all be kept under one head, and all bills will be audited and paid from the Lambertville office, where business meetings will be held, and plans promulgated.

Lambertville was considered the most advantageous spot on the whole river for the commission's offices, being on the Old York road between New York and Philadelphia, at what will probably be the heaviest traveled bridge on the river within a few years, judging by the present rapid increase. Easily accessible over good roads from points further south, as well as north, it can also be reached by train or trolley, within a hundred feet of the office itself.

The commission will have all the bridge attendants uniformed and sworn in as special automobile officers, so that they will have power to apprehend violators of the traffic laws. The recent death of William Masten, caretaker of the Lambertville-New Hope bridge, through being struck by an automobile, has brought out more forcibly the need of uniforms, and also of proper signal lights for use at night.

Accounts in connection with the maintenance of the bridges will be paid by the New Jersey Commission, and the Pennsylvania commission will refund its share of such charges on proper accounting for the same from the Lambertville office.

Irish Conference Adjourns Until Monday

LONDON, Oct. 14—The Irish peace conference after a short session today adjourned until Monday.

The parley convened just before noon under a cloud of pessimism but when it adjourned at 3 o'clock the delegates were cheerful and had apparently made progress in overcoming obstacles.

Arthur Griffith was smiling as he left Premier Lloyd George's residence at 10 Downing street.

Although Michael Collins, commander in chief of the Irish republican army had said that "he was not coming back," was present at today's meeting.

Knox Funeral

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—Flags were at half-mast and all political activities of government were suspended while the capital mourned the death of Senator Philander C. Knox of Penna.

Funeral services for the distinguished Pennsylvanian at St. Johns Episcopal church were attended by the highest officials of the government and of the diplomatic corps. President and Mrs. Harding were among those who attended his funeral.

Man Meets Intruder In His Home; Fight Follows and He Escapes

Newtown Farmer Killed by Fall

Tomly Wilson Drops From 20 Foot Ladder While Picking Apples

WAS 75 YEARS OF AGE

Falling from a ladder yesterday afternoon as he picked apples in his orchard at Newtown, Tomly Wilson, aged 75 years, was fatally injured and died a few hours later at his home from shock.

Wilson has been engaged in farming for many years. Yesterday afternoon he went out into the orchard to pick a few apples for his own use. He used a 20 foot ladder which snapped in two under the aged man's weight. He struck the ground with considerable force and broke his arm, two ribs and suffered severe shock. He was carried into his home and medical attention given, but he died a few hours afterwards.

The deceased was a well known resident of the Newtown section. During his earlier life he was active in the political affairs and civic activities of the communities. He was a member of Society of Friends. He is survived by eight children all of whom are adults.

"Gus" Jordan Presented With Fine O'Possum

"Gus" Jordan is the happiest man in Bristol today.

Why? Well! Gus was presented today with a fine young o'possum.

Perhaps you don't know Gus. He is the colored janitor at the P. R. R. passenger station. A more efficient janitor would be hard to find. "Gus" is good natured, obliging and courteous.

"Gus" is popular with those who frequent the station and last night "Dick" Coates, caught the o'possum in Stackhouse's fields. He thought of "Gus" right away. The presentation was made this morning while "Gus" smiled and expressed his appreciation.

"Gus" boxed Mr. O'possum and tonight will take him to his Princeton home, where he will live on the fat of the land until Christmas. Then "Gus" says "that 'possum will be no more."

Bristol Hero Invited To Attend Exercises

Michael Dougherty, Bristol's distinguished hero of the Civil War, is in receipt of an invitation from the Adjutant General's Office of the War Department, inviting the Bristolian to attend the ceremonies in Washington on November 10th and 11th.

Mr. Dougherty will be the guest of the nation and will witness the exercises in connection with the burying of Unknown Heroes of the World's War. Mr. Dougherty is one of 50 heroes who received the Medal of Honor in the Civil War.

Trenton Pastor Lifts Timber; Dies Today of Injured Heart

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 14—Stricken with a heart attack late last night, the Rev. Dr. George Dugan, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, died early this morning at the manse on North Warren street.

Particularly tragic is Dr. Dugan's sudden death in view of the fact that his wife is ill in the Albany Hospital, Albany, N. Y., where she underwent an operation Monday. News of her husband's death was withheld from her until late today. Dr. Dugan had arranged to visit her this afternoon.

While Dr. Dugan had suffered trouble with his heart on several occasions, his condition had never been regarded as alarming. Over-exertion last night in removing and restoring a construction barricade on the Burlington Road near Kinkora is thought to have been responsible for the fatal attack.

Dr. Dugan went to Burlington early last evening in his automobile and spoke at a Chamber of Commerce dinner. He made the trip alone and on his way there was no barrier in the road, but returning the highway was barricaded with heavy timbers. Knowing from his journey down that the road was all right, Dr. Dugan decided to remove the barrier rather than make a long detour. After displacing the timbers, he replaced them and continued to Trenton.

Lester Stout Has Exciting Experience With Man Prowling About Residence

FIGHT IN THE DARK

Intruder Knocks Ex-Service Man Down and Flees Through Window

To meet a man roaming about in your home at two o'clock in the morning and to have that man show fight and attack one is somewhat of an experience. This is what actually happened to Lester Stout, early yesterday morning, who resides with his parents at 924 Pond street.

Stout is an ex-service man and was in the World's War. He is living with his parents on Pond street and Wednesday evening retired before his father and mother, according to Mrs. Stout today.

During the night Lester awakened and went to the kitchen on the first floor of the house to get a drink of water. In the Stout home a hallway leading from the front door extends back the length of one room and then the stairway leads to the second floor.

After Lester had gotten his drink of water he came from a room in the center of the first floor and leading into this hallway, in order to return to his bed room. As he stepped through the doorway he met a big burly man. The conversation was rather short and the man began to fly. "Lester called and then we heard him fall," said his mother this afternoon. "We were all awakened and came down stairs and found Lester lying on the floor."

On investigation it was found that the alleged intruder had gained entrance to the house through a front window which he had left open in making his hasty exit. The windows are long ones reaching to the floor of the porch. Mrs. Stout says that she remembers that this window was left unfastened as she had raised it the afternoon previous to receive mail from the letter carrier.

Nothing was disturbed about the house and it is presumed that Stout interrupted the intruder's intent to rob.

Stout is no small man himself. He stands about five feet and eight inches in height and tips the scales at about 156 pounds. He tried hard to strike the intruder, but in the darkness missed his aim and struck the door with his fists.

New Bakery Opens At 804 Beaver Street

The Imperial Bakery opened a new bakery and retail store at 804 Beaver street today. The new establishment is equipped with modern baking appliances and utensils. An auto delivery has been placed on the street.

It is the intention of the new company to conduct a strictly modern and thoroughly sanitary bakery at their new location and the cooperation of the public is solicited.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1921
RETURNING PROSPERITY

Pessimistic forecasts as to the revitalization of commerce seems to be divined without considering the important actual distinction that there is between prosperity and equilibrium. It may take twenty or fifty years, perhaps more, for the oscillations of the world's trade to adjust themselves, through economic processes, to a perfect balance. On the contrary, it is undesirable, as it marks the termination and not the beginning of a flourishing epoch.

The prevailing dullness is a reactionary condition. Prices and costs rose with the expansion and impairment of credit to untenable heights. With the contraction of credit, they are compelled to descend. As soon as this liquidation has been fully realized, the era of prosperity will begin, and the dawn is not far off.

Another phase of the situation is the altered financial and mercantile inter-relationship of the nations as a result of the war. The United States is the dominating creditor-nation. Approximately $3,500,000,000 of gold has flowed into this country since peace was declared. The rest of the world is virtually bankrupt, except Japan, which has a gold surplus of $1,000,000,000.

Obviously, necessity and convenience will oblige the nations to borrow this gold and the United States to lend it to them. Self-interest is mutual. In advance of the negotiations bases of credit will have to be adopted. When loans are made, it is customary for the creditor-nation to fix advantageous trade arrangements.

Tariff agreements may be determined as conditions of loans. And in regard to the tariff question, investigation discloses that preferential duties have been constructed between governments, especially between suzerain powers and their colonies. The tariff problem thus becomes one of reciprocal adjustment on a scientific plan.

The United States no longer can refrain from taking part aggressively in international trade competition. As the greatest creditor-nation it is irrevocably a participant. As a large-scale producer in manufacture and agriculture, it must finance the bankrupt nations and form a scientific, reciprocal tariff system.

Interest and capital payments to the United States will continue for many decades. The world's trade will be more or less out of balance until debtor-nations straighten out their affairs. During all or most of this recovery period the financial and commercial fluctuations will be tending to establish the universal equilibrium.

It is apparent that the equilibrium will be the result of prosperity, and not cause. Liquidation of credit, costs and prices will bring about prosperity. Loans to bankrupt nations and reciprocal tariff agreements will accelerate this prosperity. And prosperity, extending over an incalculable period of years, will ultimately effectuate equilibrium.

SPENCER IN A PLEBIAN FLAT

Earl Spencer is one of the rich aristocrats of England who are forced by financial stringency to be commonplace in their mode of living. Although they are not quite in penury, they have deemed it to be expedient to sell or lease their large estates and mansions, and settle down in crowded London. Spencer has moved into a flat, near Spencer House, which is occupied under a lease by Princess Anastasia of Greece.

It would be good for society in general if aristocrats and plebians could change places once in a while, if denizens of the slums could move into the mansions and members of the upper crust into the hovels. The vision of both would be widened, as well as the charity kindled. Less luxury and less distress would diffuse and magnify happiness.

NOT PAYING TO BE PLEASED

Necessary though entertainment is, it is not quite so necessary as food, clothing and shelter, which are indispensable. But it is far more desirable and of more effectual public benefit in a time of commercial depression than is an era of prosperity and extravagance. The monotonous and dispiriting rigor and idleness and worry could be borne with calmer patience if a number of free community or neighborhood amusements were given at more or less regular intervals.

It is not surprising that scores of theatrical companies have been disbanded while on tour, as a consequence of lack of patronage, and their scenery and other properties shipped to New York and other headquarters for storage. According to reports from the metropolis, the warehouse of P. J. Cain, six stories high, is jammed with the possessions of several hundred seasonal failures.

The motion-picture industry has not flourished this year, either. Thousands of screen players, including a large number of popular favorites, have been idle for months. Only a very few new plays have been produced.

Everybody knows the cause of the quiescence behind the scenes in the vocal and pictorial dramas. Financial retrenchment by families is applied first by cutting down or discontinuing expenditures for luxury. Money is needed for the indispensable necessities of life, especially for food, shelter and fuel.

There are emotional phases to the prolonged tenseness of a protracted commercial lull. They could be restrained by entertainment. As the public cannot afford to pay to be amused, free public entertainments, especially in neighborhoods, suggest themselves to the mind as prudent ventures.

PULPIT AND PROBLEMS OF LIFE

Dr. Felix Adler, founder of the ethical society movement, maintains that the great problems of life should be discussed in the pulpit. His New York society was the first religious organization, he declares, to consider the labor question.

What problem of life, it may be asked, is so important as that of morals? Although conscience exists and differentiates right from wrong, it fails to abide faithfully by the natural law of ethics unless it is trained to the divine knowledge and in the divine law.

If the pulpit teaches God and morals it does more than anything else to solve the simple and great problems of life. Caesar's things make the pulpit earthly, while God's things spiritualize the race and its thoughts and deeds.

The coal barons seem to figure that coal prices should be increased, or, at least, maintained, under reduced demand. Application of this theory gives rise to suspicion of price-fixing. Washington taught combination during the war, and certain groups habituated themselves to regulating prices.

The Balkan volcano is becoming active again. And a few of the most plausible of the most righteous nations seem to be eager for the exhibition to begin.

After fixing shoe soles so as to save the upper you find you have to repair the uppers to save the soles.

HUMAN INTEREST ITEMS GATHERED ABOUT TOWN AND ITS PEOPLE

Dr. William J. Crookston, Chief of the Division of School Health, State Department of Health, in arranging for medical inspection in the schools of the Commonwealth for the present school term, has provided that the Individual Health Record Card, furnished by the Department of Health, or a record covering similar data, be placed in every school room in the third and fourth class school districts of the State.

The system provides a continuous health record of each pupil for entire school life, the entries being made by the teacher from the School Medical Inspector's record at the time of the annual inspection. Entries of follow-up work and treatment or corrections secured are made from time to time by the teacher or school nurse. A summary of mental progress is provided for on the reverse of the same record. Col. Crookston says, "The cards will remain in the school room continuously, the individual card following the pupil through the various grades, being transferred from grade to grade as promotions are made." A record system of this type will become a valuable asset to school authorities in determining the factors or causes of retardation in school work.

Due to the tie-up in the State Primary the Department has been considerably delayed in getting these cards to the various school districts, but the new edition is now completed and the card records are being forwarded to the county and District Superintendents of Schools for distribution. These records are to be in the hands of the teachers prior to the visit of the Medical Inspector and ready for making entries of defects found at the time of medical inspection.

DISCREPANCIES

There were 20,000 millionaires reported a year ago, but some of them figured their property on the basis of the prices asked rather than on what people would pay.

There are some people in Bristol who have firmly resolved not to do anything today that can be put off until next week.

This bonus for war service may be all right, but it is not necessary to include any compensation to the girls who lost their hearts to the soldiers.

15,000,000 children have now been taken out of school for needed rest, and at present are all tired out, as a result of hanging around and asking Mother what they shall do next.

Some of the people who bought eggs freely when they were $1.30 have no money left to buy them now they are fifty cents.

A lot of folks are very anxious to start up trade with Russia, and it is perfectly feasible for all who are willing to swap good merchandise for a draft returned unpaid.

Those people in Bristol who always introduce every remark by saying "Listen" are reminded that not all of the people are suffering from deafness.

Fascism Is Now a National Force in Italy, Active Against Socialism

By ADOLFO ZERBOGLIO, Deputy in Italian Parliament

Not all the doings of the Fascisti can be commended, nor is Fascism free from disquieting symptoms; but without its daring energy Italy would probably have felt the grip of Asiatic Jacobinism and have gone through a period of terrible dissolution. Wherever the Socialists, flaunting their antinational sentiment, offer violence to patriotic feeling and show disrespect to the memory of soldiers fallen in the war, there the Fascisti form their ranks, and with impetuous and often bloody reprisals restore the balance.

Fascism is most developed in northern and central Italy, especially in Bologna, Modena, Milan, Genoa, Florence, Ferrara. In some centers it covers the same ground as nationalism, but it is neither nationalist nor militarist, its sympathies being, in fact, rather with the working classes and with "syndicalism" and in some places even with republicanism.

Fascism is now a national force which will remain active until socialism shrinks once more within its legitimate bounds and no longer threatens that glorious unity.

COMMENT ON TIMELY TOPICS

How much more reasonable, convincing, practical, humanitarian, admirable and respectable is the clear vision of Judge Florence E. Allen of Cleveland as to woman's opportunities to be a beneficent influence in public affairs than is the exaggerated and distorted prospect conjured up by self-deluded sociological progressives. The sympathetic philosophy of Judge Allen's ideas is that woman's political power enables woman, not to pervert her rights in doubtful self-interest but to advance the common weal.

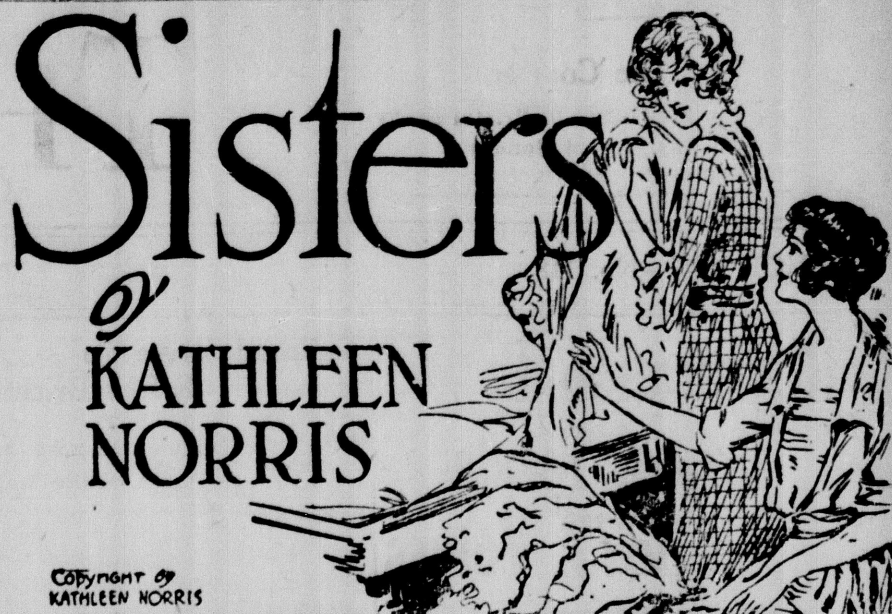

Addressing assemblies of women in St. Louis, Judge Allen solemnly counseled them to employ their civic prestige for disarmament and world peace and towards eradicating customary abuses in court practices, rules and procedure. Unfettered, unbiased, women are conditioned better than men, who are apathetic as a result of habituation to reform the courts and juries. The noble sentiment of woman, her courageous self-sacrifice, her ardent devotion, her untutored understanding of suffering and distress, and her high social and racial ideals should make her an inspired advocate of universal disarmament and peace.

Miss Allen sees far in the future and in the dismal places of the world. Court reforms would materially and permanently benefit American society by substituting justice and mercy for compromise and unfairness. Even partial victory in an organized movement would not only spare the nations much woe and sorrow but would emancipate oppressed sisters in all parts of the earth.

The new woman is a free, but not a different woman, at heart or in mind. She has only secured rights which she deserved to have, and she will not use them selfishly, but, in the characteristic, womanly way, for the good of all, and in particular for the greater sanctification of the home. Woman is love, and she will invest her civic work with love, thinking always of home, and family and country.

The sociological progressives who would weaken and thereby vitiate the marital relationship as a privilege of equality and independence are not representative in their views, of the majority of womanhood. They are the radical exceptions. The modern woman realizes that the marriage bond and the home are the life and safety of the nation.

Judge Allen shows how women will exercise her civic rights. The new, free and enlightened woman will make both the home and country better.

"I'll be there before you. It is 11:15 for us not to meet upstairs. But to be sure, I'll telephone you at Miss Oliver's at about nine o'clock tomorrow morning. I'll just tell you that I'm on my way and that everything is all right! Do you realize that by this time tomorrow we shall be out at sea," he added, "leaning on the rail—watching the Pacific race by—and belonging to each other forever and ever?"

The picture flooded her face with happy color. "It's tomorrow at last!" she said wonderingly as they walked slowly toward the house. "I thought it would never be. It's only a few hours more now."

"How will you feel when it's today?" he asked.

"Oh, Peter, I shall be so glad when it's all over, and when the letters are written, and when we've been together for a year," she answered fervently. "I know it will be all as we have planned, but—if it were over!"

They reached the side door now and were mounting the three steps together.

"Be patient until tomorrow," he whispered.

"Oh," she said softly, "I shan't breathe until tomorrow."

Leaving across her to push back the light screen door, he found himself face to face with Alix. In the dark entryway Peter and Cherry had not seen her, had not heard her move. Peter cursed his carelessness; he could not remember, in the utter confusion of the moment, just what he and Cherry had said, but if it was of a betraying nature, they had betrayed themselves. One chance in a hundred that she had not heard!

Yet, if she was acting, she was acting superbly. Cherry had turned scarlet and had given him an open glance of consternation, but Alix did not seem to see it. She addressed Peter, but when he found himself physically unable to answer, she continued the conversation with no apparent consciousness of his stumbling effort to appear natural.

"There you are! Are we going to have any tennis? It's after two o'clock now."

"I had no idea it was so late," Peter said.

"I knew it was getting on," Cherry added, utterly at random.

"Go in and tell the boy we won't be back until tomorrow," Martin suggested to his wife.

"You could all come down here to sleep," Cherry said, "and have breakfast here!"

"I have to go into town rather early tomorrow," Peter remarked. "Porter's giving a breakfast at the Bohemian club."

"Why not walk up to the cabin?" Cherry suggested in a shaking voice.

"I have to take the car up. You three walk! Come on, anybody who wants to ride!" Alix said.

"They can walk," Martin said, getting into the front seat. "Me for the little old bus!"

Cherry came out of the house with her hat on, and Buck leaped before her into the back seat. Alix watched her as she stepped up on the running board, and saw the color flicker in her beautiful face.

"I thought you were going to walk?" Peter said nervously. He had snatched up to them with an air of indifference.

"Shall I?" faltered Cherry. She looked at Alix, who had not yet climbed into the car and was pulling on her driving gloves. Alix, toward whose face the dog was making eager springs, did not appear interested, so Cherry turned to Martin. "Walk with us," she said.

"Nix," Martin said comfortably, no stirring.

"I'll be home before you, Pete, and wait for you," Alix said. She looked at him irresolutely, as if she would have added more, but evidently decided against it and spoke again only in reference to the dog. "Keep Buck with you, will you, Pete?" she said. "He's getting too lazy. No, sir!" she reproached the animal affectionately. "You shall not ride! Well, the dear old Bucky-boy, does he want to come along?"

And she knelt down and put her arms about the animal, and laid her brown cheek against his head.

"You old fool!" she said, shaking him gently to and fro. "You've got to stay with Peter. Old Buck—!"

Suddenly she was on her feet and had sprung into her place.

"Hold him, Pete!" she said. "Good-bye, Sis dear! All right, Martin?"

The engine raged; the car slipped smoothly into gear and vanished. Peter and Cherry stood looking at each other.

"Give them a good start, or Buck will catch them," Peter said, his body swaying with the frantic jumping of the straining dog. But to himself he said, with a sense of shock: "Alix knows!"

Buck was off like a rocket when he finally set him free; his feathery tail disappeared between the columns of the redwood. Without speaking Cherry and Peter started after him. "And now that we are alone together," Cherry said, after a few minutes, "there seems to be nothing to say. We've said it all."

"Nothing to say!" Peter echoed. "Alix knows," he said in his heart.

"Whatever we do, it all seems so wrong!" Cherry said with watering eyes.

"Whatever we do is wrong," he agreed soberly.

"But we go?" she said on a fluttering breath.

"We must go!" Peter answered. And again, like the ominous fall of heavy bell-tongue, the words formed in his heart: "Alix knows. Alix knows."

He thought of the afternoon, only a few weeks ago, when Cherry's beauty had made so sudden and so irresistible an appeal to him, and of the innocent delight of their luncheons together, when she had first confided in him, and of the days of secret and intense joy that her mere nearness and the knowledge that he would see her had afforded him. It had seemed so fresh, so natural, so entire, their own affair, until the tragic day of Martin's reappearance and the hour of agonized waiting at the box for the Cherry who did not come.

There had been no joyous self-confidence in that hour, none in the distressed hour at the Orpheum, and the hour just past, when Cherry's rare, displayed passion had wrenched from him his last vestige of doubt.

But this was the culminating unhappiness that he should know, from Alix's brave and gentle and generous look as they parted, that Alix knew he had, in the wild rush and hurry of his thoughts, no time now to analyze what their love must mean to her, but it hurt him to see on her happy face those lines of sternness and gravity to see her bright and honest eyes shadowed with that new look of pain.

Cooperation of Parents Pleases Sup't Faust

Head of Township Educational System Outlines School Law in Important Particulars Relating to Employment, Etc.

*Since the Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg, through the Bureau of Attendance is actually enforcing certain Attendance Laws on the statute books of the state, the school authorities in various places have experienced quite a lot of difficulties and at times unpleasant experiences in doing what is really required to enforce the attendance laws, said S. K. Faust, Superintendent of Bristol Township schools, when seen at his office in the Harriman school Building, today.

Continuing, Mr. Faust said: "We, in Bristol Township, are really well pleased with the response of our patrons so far as attendance is concerned, however, there are still those who do not understand their duty as parents in the matter of attendance; also in matters pertaining to the employment of school children."

Then Mr. Faust handed the writer a copy of attendance letter No. 1 prepared by the Department of Public Instruction, which explains very definitely the duty of parents in attendance matters as well as the use of excuses.

The letter reads as follows:

DUTY OF PARENTS

The School Code requires that every parent, or other person, in this Commonwealth, having control or charge of any child between the ages of eight and sixteen years shall send such child to a day school in which the common English branches are taught in the English language; and such children shall attend such school continuously throughout the entire term.

The only exception is that a child may be excused by the school board for a continuous period of absence, and by the teacher for a temporary period for physical, mental, or other urgent reasons, but the term "urgent reasons" shall be strictly construed and shall not permit of irregular attendance.

When a child has been absent three days, or their equivalent, without legal excuse the parent or the person having control of said child shall be arrested and upon conviction shall be fined not more than two dollars ($2.00) and costs for the first offense, and not more than five dollars ($5.00) and costs for each succeeding offense. If the child has once been illegally absent for three days and due notice has been served, the person having control of said child is then subject to arrest without further notice as soon as the child is again illegally absent from school for a single session.

If the school district fails to enforce the Compulsory Attendance Law the State Superintendent may withhold the district's entire appropriation.

TARDINESS AND EXCUSES

The excuse is the parent's protection from arrest, and when ever a child is absent, a written excuse stating clearly and completely the reason for the absence and the exact time of absence should be sent to the proper authority as soon as the child returns to school. If the child is tardy, the time lost by such tardiness, when equivalent to three days absence without legal excuse, is a cause for arrest of the one having control or charge of said child, just the same as if the child were illegally absent three days.

EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN

A minor under fourteen years of age must not be employed except by the parents about the home, and then only when the school is not in session.

A minor between fourteen and sixteen years of age may not be employed in any occupation unless he holds a general or vacation employment certificate except in case said minor is working on the farm or in domestic service in a private home. The parents of such child in that case, by presenting reasons sufficiently urgent, secure a permit from the board of education when such service is rendered during the time the school is in session, providing said minor has completed the work of the first six grades of the public schools or its equivalent.

Any person who shall permit any minor under sixteen years of age to work in, about, or in connection with any establishment, or in any occupation unless said minor shall have been issued an employment certificate by the school authorities upon a form issued by the Bureau of Attendance of the State Department of Public Instruction or any person who shall illegally issue an employment certificate shall, upon conviction thereof, be sentenced to pay a fine of not less than ten dollars ($10.00), nor more than two hundred dollars ($200.00) or to undergo an imprisonment of not more than ten days, or both, at the discretion of the court.

The annual meeting of the Bucks County Natural Science Association will be held at George School next Saturday. A business session will be held at 11 o'clock, at which reports of field days will be submitted. An illustrated address on "Moths and Butterflies," by Dr. Jesse E. Packer, of Newtown, will complete the morning session and a basket lunch will follow.

At the afternoon session, commencing at 2 o'clock Dr. Edmund Coeks, of George School, will speak on "Mendelism, in Its Present Day Aspects," illustrated, and "Our Relation to the Universe," an illustrated astronomical lecture, will be delivered by John Henry Frome, of Philadelphia.

Directors of the Bucks County Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis held their quarterly meeting in the office of the field secretary on Monday afternoon at Doylestown.

Mr. Grahn reported having appointed up to this time 43 local chairmen for the Christmas seal sale and also visited 27 schools, enrolled nearly 1300 children in the health work of the Modern Health Crusade. At every place a plea for a larger sale of seals was made and a promise of hearty cooperation given. The society has ordered a Victor cinematograph stereopticon with 118 slides on the subject of tuberculosis. It is hoped by pictures to aid in the health work, engagements having already been made for the showing of the pictures.

"World's Judgment Day at Hand"

Judge Rutherford

This evil world (the unrighteous order of rulership) is rapidly passing away, and is now actually in the throes of its death struggle. The present clashing of self-seeking interests are only evidences of the vain endeavors of the old evil world to perpetuate itself in its old iniquitous way.

The world's greatest statesmen, regardless of their denominational indoctrination, whether Jew or Gentile, recognize and admit that the old order has been cast off, and that radical reconstruction is necessary if there is to be peace and safety in the future. Thousands of independent Bible scholars are convinced by prophecies fulfilled that the old evil world ended just on time, 1914, and that the "new heavens and a new earth," the "times of refreshing," are just at hand.

Great Series Now
A Thing of Past
Wonderful Fight of Opposing Teams Makes History
For Baseball
YANKEES STILL HOPE

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The greatest world's series is a thing of history today.

From a standpoint of spectacular playing in the "pinches," tightly pitched games, attendance and a wonderful display of fighting spirit on the part of both teams there has never been another series like it and it will be years, many years before it can be duplicated.

Col. Til Huston, one of the Yankee owners, expressed the opinion of the average New Yorker when he said:

"I've seen ball clubs fight tooth and nail. I've seen pitchers throw their hearts out. I've seen a lot of things performed on a baseball diamond in my time, but I have never seen a gamier pair of teams than the Yankees and Giants proved themselves to be in this series."

"Just say for me," the Colonel continued, "that it took a few years to build up an American league championship winner and it may take a little longer to form a world's championship but we'll have 'em if it takes till doomsday."

A tear rolled down the Colonel's cheek as he spoke and Col. Ruppert smiled and nodded assent.

"We're going to start building our own park next Spring," said Col. Ruppert. "That's how much we think of the Yanks."

John McGraw and the owners of the Giants spent the happiest day of their lives. The outcome of the series and two time world's series and seven time national league champion puts Manager McGraw so far ahead of rival managers that they are invisible for his "dust."

McGraw, incidentally, deserves a tremendous amount of credit for the victory scored by his team. Coming from behind after losing two games in a row to the plucky and capable Yankees, "Mack's" men evened up the series by winning two in a row themselves and through wonderful handling of pitchers and brilliant work on the part of every slabman who went into the box for the Giants with the lone exception of Fred Toney, the national league champions swept majestically to victory. Fighting spirit on the part of the Giants, the spirit that enables a man or a team to come from behind and win, was the secret of the success of McGraw's team, coupled, as it was with admirable and craftier management.

No one can say that the Giants were the gamier team, for the Yankees fought like wildcats for every game and were never beaten until the last man was out. They did all this without Babe Ruth, whose loss amounted to a decrease of some 35 per cent. of their attacking effectiveness.

THEATRES

Forrest Theatre

If you let your neighbor see Bryant Washburn's romantic and hilarious adventure on "The Road to London" first, you'll never forgive yourself, because she'll come right over to your house as soon as she has seen it at the Forrest Theatre and tell you all about it.

That's the kind of picture this Associated Exhibitors feature is—it's contagious; infectious. It is so breezy, heartily funny that you want to relate it to someone just for the joy of making them laugh as Bryant Washburn made you laugh.

Can you imagine what might happen when all that American pep that is Bryant Washburn's comes in contact with British deliberateness? I say, just fawney naow what might happen when he borrowed a motor car in which to help a titled but beautiful English girl escape from a hated marriage. Over there they keep to the left of the road doncha know! And they haven't forgotten what corkscrews were invented for! And a lot of things can happen to a daring young Yankee in a strange land!

The Forrest Theatre has been anxious to show "The Road to London" to its patrons ever since Bryant Washburn crossed the big pond to produce it in and around London, and it is pleased to say that it considers the picture worth the trip and then some. It will be shown there tonight.

billions of dollars—and China today is staggering under an enormous burden of foreign indebtedness.

The great railway lines in China owned and operated by foreign auspices are the South Manchurian railway, the Chinese Eastern railway, the Yunnan railway and the Shantung railway. The first three were secured by agreements with China in 1896 by Japan, Russia and France, respectively. The latter was secured by Germany in agreement with China, control over which has since passed to Japan by right of conquest of Kiao Chow, which conquest and right to control was confirmed by the league of nations at the reputed instance of former President Woodrow Wilson, the stipulation being that Japan should join the league.

ARE YOU GOING TO CHURCH
To Trenton
To Philadelphia
Or Intervening Points

IF SO you will find the cars of the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia Street Railway Company the handiest and quickest way to reach your destination. You'll save time and time saved means cash saved.

You should acquire the habit of using the trolleys. People of other towns have, and find it of great advantage. So will you, if you try it.

Travel by Schedule. We have printed schedules. You can have one for the asking.

Trenton, Bristol & Phila.
Street Railway Company

The chief railway lines in China owned by the Chinese government, but with a large measure of administrative control reserved by the mortgage holders, are the Peking-Hankow railway, the Peking-Mukden lines and the Chanting-Taiyuan railway.

In addition to these railway mortgages and railway loans, China is literally nailed to the wall by foreign mortgages in other enterprises. Italy, Portugal, France and Great Britain have great commercial concessions and dependency ports of entry in China. China might well be described as being in a state of concessional confusion.
